Key Question

SOUTHWARK
2030

Key Question

The key question we would like pupils to answer is:

What are your hopes for 2030?

Another way to put it is 'what would you like your lives to be like in 2030'?

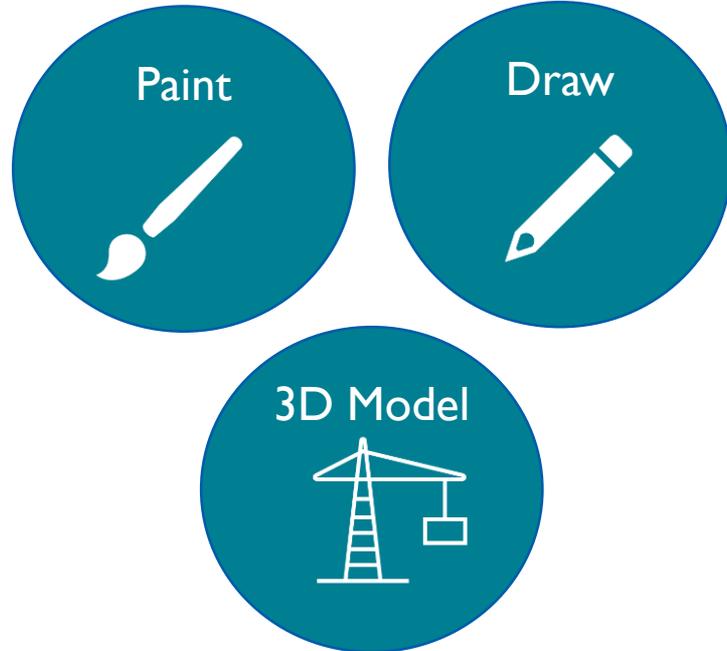

Activity Options

You are free to answer this question through any activity that you believe would work for your pupils. Below are some ideas on the different options you could use, but feel free to use your imagination!

Stimulating thought

It can be hard for people to think about their hopes for the future. Therefore, before doing the activity (see options section above) you may want to do a warmup exercise to get the children and young people thinking about what their hopes might be.

You could integrate this into activities your class or school is already doing. For example:

- Using a local fieldtrip to ask them to notice the things they would want to keep and the things they would want to change.
- Having a class assembly looking at how much has changed in the last seven years and exploring what the next seven years could hold.
- Reading a book set in the future.
- Learning about the past and how much has changed.

Alternatively, you could have a dedicated discussion.

Dedicated discussion – prompt questions

If you choose to have a dedicated discussion with your class, below are key prompt questions you could use.

Prompt questions:

- How old will you be in 2030? (good opening question)
- What would you like to be doing?
- Who would you be with?
- What would your environment be like?
- What would you like to stay the same and what would they like to change?

Another way to get pupils thinking is by thinking about themes.

Dedicated discussion – themes

Another or complementary approach is to help children and young people to think about the various aspects of their lives. We have called these themes.

The following five slides provide images which you can share with your students to help inspire them to think about their hopes for the future.

Another idea is to think about senses. What would they like to see, hear, taste, touch or smell in 2030? The final slide shows images which you can use if helpful.

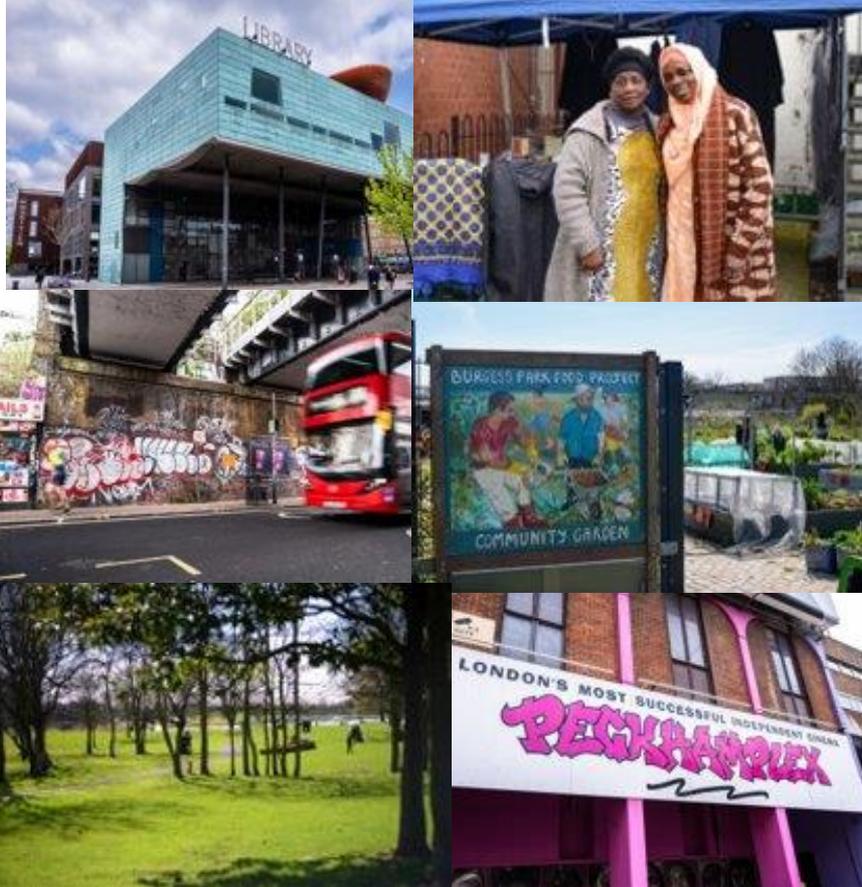

Your daily life

- School
- Health
- Fairness and equality
- Having your voice heard on things that matter to you

Your local area

- Your neighbours
- Things to do
- Safety
- Transport
